Bridesmaids in Quaint Gowns and Hats—Other Modish Details.

Family lace which had been worn by the sister of the bride, their mother and grandmother. The bride's gown was of heavy white satin. The bodice was of tulle and lace and the skirt was made quite full with panther effects on each side of tulle. The long court train was a combination of the tulle and lace, edged with bands of satin. The tulle veil fell to the end of her train. She carried a shower of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The bride's sister was matron of honor and wore a costume of yellow pussy willow tulle combined with silver lace, a large black velvet hat ornamented with a single yellow rose completing the dainty costume. Her flowers were pink roses and orchids.

In shades of pink, yellow and lavender. The delicate rainbow colorings were artistically used in the bridesmaids' frocks, which were most effective in design. All four gowns were made short-waisted, the skirts being ruffled from the waist to the hem with tulle in shades of pink, green, yellow and lavender, and the bodices were of pearl sequins. The costumes differed only in the sleeves, caps and slippers, each maid having hers in a different shade. They carried chrysanthemums.

A bride of last week in New York was Miss Estelle Young Ramsey, now Mrs. Ernest Wat. The hour originally set for the wedding was half-past 3 o'clock, but this was changed to 3, because of the preparation in 5th avenue for the woman suffrage parade.

The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white satin combined with old lace and made with a court train. Her veil was caught in a ruff of tulle and orange blossoms instead of the usual lace cap. The bride's sister, Mrs. William Everdell, Jr., who was her chief attendant, and the four bridesmaids were strikingly pretty costumes of blue satin combined with palest pink chiffon. The bodice of each costume was blue with a gridle of small puffs of the same material at the waist. The three over-skirts of chiffon, bordered with gold, were draped from this gridle. A panel of the dull, light blue satin in front broadened from the waist to the hem of the skirt. The bridesmaids wore basket hats of black and gold, trimmed with fur, and Mrs. Everdell's hat was of gold cloth and black. All wore scarves of sheer chiffon, dark brown, wisps of which were drawn over the lower part of the face, with the rest of the scarf wound around the bodice, then falling from the waist like a sash.

The autumn colors, brown and gold, were used in decorations at the church as well as the bride's attendants.

Wedding Details. The wedding in the church of the Most Holy Trinity, at 10th and M streets, N.E., was held at 11 o'clock. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a gown of white satin combined with old lace and made with a court train. Her veil was caught in a ruff of tulle and orange blossoms instead of the usual lace cap. The bride's sister, Mrs. William Everdell, Jr., who was her chief attendant, and the four bridesmaids were strikingly pretty costumes of blue satin combined with palest pink chiffon. The bodice of each costume was blue with a gridle of small puffs of the same material at the waist. The three over-skirts of chiffon, bordered with gold, were draped from this gridle. All wore scarves of sheer chiffon, dark brown, wisps of which were drawn over the lower part of the face, with the rest of the scarf wound around the bodice, then falling from the waist like a sash.

Something New in an Orchid Wedding. York had an orchid wedding, and yellow, pink and orchid shades were used as the color scheme.

The bride's dress was of white duchesse satin, elaborately trimmed and fashioned with a bodice of tulle and opalescent studded with pearls. The court train hung from the shoulders, the wedding veil, which was arranged from a coronet of pearls, crossed the brow becomingly and fell in a graceful enveloping fold. She carried a muffled bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Bertha Hulcher was maid of honor, and wore pink tulle and carried pink roses. Mrs. P. Clifton Talley was matron of honor. Her chic costume was of buff tulle with gold lace trimmings. The bridesmaids, Misses Mary Kain, Carroll V. D. Frick of Washington, Bernadette Meredith and Agnes Gerring, were gowned in orchid-shade dresses, with quaint hats to match.

A recent Cleveland bride, Miss Frances Bagby, wore ivory-white duchesse satin in a quaintly designed affair. Follow 1830 Models. The bride's short and draped with fleecy, bouffant skirts of silk tulle, over which panniers were caught gracefully at the sides, very full over the hips. The court train of satin was held at the shoulders with knots of orange blossoms and the bridal veil was prettily worn, falling from a conning band of point lace, which gave the effect of a crown in front, and caught with orange blossoms at the back.

The matron of honor was gowned in an 1830 creation of Killarney rose-pink satin and tulle, the full panniers looped with garlands of tiny pink Killarney roses. She carried a graceful, noose cluster of Killarney roses and ferns.

Rose point lace formed the waist and fell down the train on the wedding dress of Miss Marie Louise O'Neill, at her marriage to Edward C. Briley, in Detroit last week. Miss Clara McDonnell of Chicago, in a stunning costume of moonshine blue silk with tulle and dainty lace and large black picture hat, was a most attractive maid of honor.

Little Miss Eunice Elise Browning, the bride's niece, will be her only attendant. A breakfast for the guests already assembled at the ceremony will follow.

An interesting wedding of Thursday will be that of Miss Nina Knox Van Orsdale and Mr. E. West, which will take place at the home of the bride's uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. William Salisbury Knox. The ceremony will take place at 8 o'clock. Rev. Dr. C. Ernest Smith officiating, and a large reception will follow.

Mrs. Harry Smith Berry of Nashville, Tenn., formerly Miss Georgia Knox, cousin of the bride, will be her matron of honor, and Miss Marion West, sister of Mr. West, will be maid of honor. Miss Katherine Berry and Miss Bettie Brown will be little flower girls. Mr. Ralph De Shields Quinter will act as best man.

The two maids of honor wore pink satin frocks with very short full skirts. Plain across the front, but finished at the back and sides with ruffles of silver lace stiffened so as to stand out like crinolines and finished at the ends with a row of small pink roses. The corsages were of old style, shortwaisted, with silver girdles, and cut very low and square, and short puffed sleeves of the lace and pink roses caught at one side. Their large black velvet hats were faced with pink, and each hat had a long garfille streamer of black velvet faced with blue that extended from the brim round the neck and down the back. A single pink rose was caught to each brim, and they carried large bouquets of pink roses with trails of long-stemmed roses.

The six bridesmaids were gowned like the maids of honor, only in blue and silver. All wore old-time ribbon laced silver sandals, with flat heels, and their hats were faced with pink.
